

The diagram shows a rectangular area divided vertically into two equal halves. The left half is filled with a light gray color, and the right half is white. A horizontal line of black dots is positioned near the bottom edge. The dots are distributed across the entire width of the rectangle. In the gray region, the dots form a nearly straight horizontal line. In the white region, the dots form a small, slightly curved cluster that rises slightly above the main horizontal line.

5